THE CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

[Communicated.]

Discerning the signs of the times, a band of earnest women organized a Woman's Christian Temperance Union in this city. They desire the co-operation of others, and state their aims.

With no political axe to grind or smashing campaign to inaugurate, their sole purpose is to protect and help the tempted, especially our youth, from the enticements that church, State and society indifferently regard. Ordinary intelligence and observation will show the need of such a move. Every year an average of sixty thousand drunkards bury their ruined lives in the darkness of the grave.

A good woman's influence is worth too much to waste in the discussion of the exact analysis of Cana wine miraculously made of water, or to risk offering an intoxicating beverage to one who has long been considered a "respectable moderate drinker."

The members of the W. C. T. U. would by precept and example excite all their influence in behalf of purity and temperance.

Only by avoiding the appearance of evil in private and public can this be done. The hostess who has the courage to discard the punch bowl and its kindred—the woman who dares declare her temperance principles—will strengthen the weak will just ready to yield to the fatal cup, that at last "biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

"Thou sparkling bowl! thou sparkling bowl!
Tho' lips of hards thy brim may press,
And eyes of beauty o'er the roll,
And song and dance thy power confess,
I will not touch thee, for there clings
A scorpion to thy side that stings."

When the moral sentiment of the home is safe there will be less demand for outside supply.

"Cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also." Mothers, wives, daughters, sisters! have you none to guard or rescue?

THE SALE CONFIRMED

Wilmington Street Railway Company Passes Into Hands of Hugh MacRae & Co.

THEIR BID WAS $101,500.

Nothing Definite Yet as to Purpose of the Purchasers to Convert the Seacoast Road Into Trolley System—It Will Cost $100,000.

It may be announced upon perfectly reliable authority that the recent sale of the Wilmington Street Railway Company to Messrs. Hugh MacRae & Co., bankers and brokers, has been confirmed.

The opinion of many has been all along that the sale would not be confirmed, but it now appears that the unexpected has happened. The system was bid in at a sale in this city on October 7th, under decree of a foreclosure sale made by the Eastern District Circuit Court in a case brought by the Morton Trust Company, of New York, to compel payment of interest and principal of the bonds under the terms of agreement entered into between the road and the bondholders. The purchasers were Hugh MacRae & Co., and the amount paid was $101,500.

As far as can be learned there was no objection to the confirmation, and the necessary papers passed through the office of the deputy clerk of the court, in this city, without the hearing by Judge Purnell in Raleigh, for which there was no necessity, no objection having been made.

The following special telegram was received by the STAR last night from its correspondent in Raleigh:

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 22.—Judge Purnell is at Elizabeth City this week holding court. To-day was set apart to show cause, if any, why the sale of the Wilmington Street Railway to Hugh MacRae & Co., should not be confirmed. If there was a hearing as to the matter it was in Elizabeth City.

Mr. Hugh MacRae was here to-day attending a meeting of the North Carolina Railroad Board of Directors. He left this afternoon for New York. He discussed the Street Railway matter with your correspondent but did not mention any confirmation. He spoke of the purchase, however, as settled and expected very soon to know positively as to whether the company will put a trolley line on the Seacoast road. He seemed sure that it would. He intimated that certain co-operation on the part of residents on the sound and beach was necessary to assure the change which would cost a hundred thousand dollars.

JOHN ROBINSON IN FAYETTEVILLE.

Immense Crowds Present Yesterday to Witness the Performance.

Parties who came down from Fayetteville last night say that an immense crowd of people saw the exhibition by John Robinson's shows in that city yesterday afternoon and were fairly well pleased with the perform ance. Two special trains consisting of 40 cars were operated by the A. C. L. from Wilson to Fayetteville for the purpose of transporting the circus paraphernalia and at least 5,000 people saw the show.

The Fayetteville Observer of yesterday afternoon says that there was a larger crowd of people on the streets than was ever seen in Fayetteville on "circus day" before. The Observer also has the following concerning a rumor which has reached Wilmington:

"The report that there were nothing but reserved seats, and those at an extra cost of 50 cents, proved incorrect here, as only about one-fifth of the seats were reserved, and certain of the reserved seats could be had on payment of the usual 25 cents extra."

THE JOHN ROBINSON SHOWS.

A Gorgeous, Sumptuous and Impressive Augmentation Coming On Nov. 4th.

The acme of scenic splendor was reached when John Robinson produced the great spectacle of Solomon, his temple and the Queen of Sheba.

No court was greater in all that pertained to magnificence than Solomon's, and as historically reproduced with dozens of calcium and vari-colored lights on the brilliant costumes and scintilating armor, it has received unstinted praise from all who have been fortunate enough to witness the grand spectacle.

The circus has been characterized as the most interesting in its unexceptional features and in the general excellence of its ring performances. The menagerie is large and comprehensive and includes living specimens of the rarest beasts, birds, reptiles and amphibi.

The colossal Roman hippodrome is in itself a feature that has no duplication and carries the spectator back to Imperial Ceasar's day.

The show will exhibit at Wilmington on Monday, Nov. 4th.

Rev. Mr. George Undecided.

Newbern Journal: "Rev. T. M. N. George at the morning service, Christ Episcopal Church, Sunday, made a few remarks relative to the call received by him from St. James' Episcopal Church at Wilmington and stated that he was considering the matter but was unable as yet to announce his determination in the matter."

OPERA HOUSE LAST NIGHT.

Dixie Stock Company in Clever Presentation of "My Partner"—Rip Van Winkle the Bill To-night.

Another good sized audience was delighted by the Dixie Stock Company last night. "My Partner," a bill of Western type and possessing the usual element that hovers around the mine, was presented in a splendid manner. The members of the cast again met all requirements and received much appreciative applause from the audience.

Especially praiseworthy was the work of Mr. James G. Morton and Mr. Ed. Dupont. These two gentlemen, each in strong contrast to the other, one portraying emotion and the other comedy, were decidedly finished in conception and execution of difficult roles. The former was really able in presenting the character of Joe, while the latter was up to the very pinnacle as MajorBritt Mr. E. J. Lee made a good Ned and Mr. Jack Mahoney an exceptional fine chink.

The specialties all differed from those of the night before. Again in the lead appeared Miss Lillian Mack with her popular illustrated songs. Especially fine was her rendition of the popular ballad, "He Laid Away a Suit of Gray to Wear the Union Blue."

To-day the company gives two performances. At special matinee this afternoon the pleasing comedy, "The Circus Girl," will be presented and to-night "Rip Van Winkle" will be the bill.

STOLE WATCHES AND DIAMONDS.

Negro Servant Arrested and Charged With Larceny From Residence of Employer.

Martha Clark, colored, residing on Sixth, near Walnut street, and employed for a time as a servant at the residence of Mr. William H. Konig, No. 826 North Fourth street, has been arrested and placed in jail charged with stealing from her employer a silk umbrella, a black skirt, a lady's belt, a lady's gold watch, two diamond rings and another ring with turquoise setting.

Mrs. Konig has been sick for the past several weeks and during her illness the negro had access to the house without fear of her misappropriations being immediately detected. She at first stole the umbrella, later the skirt and belt and subsequently went into a jewelry box in a bureau of one of the rooms and stole the rings, watch, etc.

Mr. Konig says many other articles are missing and there is evidence of systematic stealing for some time. The Clark woman denies having stolen anything but evidence will be introduced to show that she told another negro at church that the rings had been given to her by Mrs. Konig. The negro is from the country.

ENGINEER PEMBERTON'S SUIT.

Case for Damages Against A. C. L. Set for Trial Next Tuesday.

Cumberland Superior Court, Judge Thos. A. McNeill presiding, is now in session at Fayetteville and will continue for two weeks. At present the court is engaged in hearing a damage suit brought by H. R. Townsend against the Western Union Telegraph Company. One of the most important suits of the term is that brought by Engineer J. A. Pemberton against the A. C. L. R. R. Co. The Fayetteville Observer of yesterday afternoon has the following in reference to it:

"The most important case for trial at this term, and what promises to be one of the most interesting suits ever heard in North Carolina is that of Mr. J. A. Pemberton, against the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, for $100,000, for injuries, received in the wreck at Teacheys. Engineer Pemberton, it will be remembered, was running the engine of a freight train that crushed into the rear of another freight, and he had to jump to save his life. He, however, received severe injuries, which his physicians declare disable him for life. The plaintiff alleges that the accident was caused by the negligence of one of the crew of the train ran into. This case is set for next Tuesday, and some of the most prominent legal talent in the State will be employed on both sides, and there will be a host of expert medical testimony."

MARRIED IN RICHMOND, VA.

Miss Nessie Wescott Became Bride of Mr. Fowler, of St. Louis.

Numerous friends in the city will be interested in the announcement that on Monday afternoon at 6 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. Maury Frye, Richmond, Va., Miss Nessie Wescott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Wescott, of this city, was married to Mr. Herbert H. Fowler, of St. Louis, Mo. Miss Wescott had been visiting in Richmond for some time. The news of her marriage was rather unexpected by a number of her friends in Wilmington.

Reception by Mrs. Borden.

Mrs. Herbert L. Borden gave an elaborate reception at her home, No. 511 Dock street, yesterday afternoon between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock in honor of her brother, Mr. Robert Strange Maffitt, and bride, who are spending a part of their honeymoon at Mr. Maffitt's Southern home before returning to New York. A number of invitations were issued and the event was one of the most delightful social functions of the early Fall.

KILLED BY AN ENGINE

George W. Price, Well Known Colored Man, Met Almost Instant Death.

ON THE COAST LINE YARDS.

Attempted to Cross in Front of Locomotive and Was Run Over Yesterday Evening at 7 O'clock Near Worth's Ice Factory.

George W. Price, an influential colored citizen of Wilmington and for many years a justice of the peace of the county, was run over by a shifting engine in the A. C. L. yards here last night about 7:30 o'clock, receiving injuries from which he died at the Walker Memorial Hospital a few minutes after being transferred there in the city ambulance.

No one witnessed the tragedy and particulars of the accident are meagre. Price was just starting to cross the A. C. L. yards, going over into "Brooklyn," at a point just below Worth's ice factory on Second street. He had not crossed the first track of the many on the yards when he was struck by a shifting engine in charge of Engineman Smith and all his lower limbs were terribly mangled and bruised. Both legs were cut off about half way between the knees and ankles; both thighs were broken in two or three places and his right hand was badly crushed. None of the train crew knew of the accident until the "shifter" and several cars had passed over the colored man. They were then attracted by the cries and groans of the wounded man beside the track. It was found that one of Price's feet had become fastened between a guard rail at the switch and the main track. His shoe and one of his legs was taken from between the rails after the accident.

Dr. F. H. Russell was quickly summoned to the wounded negro and later Dr. D. W. Bulluck assisted in giving him temporary surgical attention. He was then sent to the hospital but he died in a few minutes after reaching there and before the surgeons had time to dress the wounds. The body was later sent to Price's home on Eighth and Swann streets.

Price was about 57 years of age and leaves a wife and several children, among them being a grown son. For years he conducted a second-hand house furnishing store and cabinet shop. Only a few months ago he moved his place of business from near Fourth street bridge to Sixth between Swann and Nixon streets. He was a member of the colored Masonic order and was prominent in other secret societies and industrial enterprises conducted by colored people.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 23.

OPPOSED TO THE GREENBACKS.

It is quite apparent from the proceedings of the Bankers' meeting, held last week in Milwaukee, that a strong effort will be made to retire the greenbacks. In his address Secretary Gage laid particular stress on this and doubtless the majority of the bankers present agreed with him. It is easy to understand why the bankers should favor it, because the proposition is to substitute national bank notes for the retired greenbacks, thus giving the banks control of all the paper currency in the country, with the exception of the gold and silver certificates.

As a business proposition it is doubtless a very good one for the banks. But it is not so apparent why those who are not identified with the banks should desire it. There are now outstanding about $346,000,000 of greenbacks. They are in every respect the equal of either gold or silver, and in ordinary business transactions are preferred to either. They are to all intents and purposes gold or silver certificates because when presented at the Treasury they may be exchanged for either. Another thing about them is that the volume cannot be reduced except by redemption, or by being locked up. But if they are redeemed it can be only by exchanging them for gold in the Treasury, or for some other kind of money if taken by banks, so that whether redeemed or exchanged for speculative or other purposes some other kind of money goes into circulation in place of them.

As far as their use as currency goes they have stood the test and held their own with both gold and silver. Their standing as money in the full sense has never been questioned. They buy as much of any commodity as gold or silver; they pay debts and taxes as well as gold or silver; may be presented at a U. S. Treasury and be exchanged for gold or silver, and therefore the people of the country consider them just as good for all purposes of business as coin of either kind, and have not asked and do not want them retired. They are based on the credit of the Government, and while the patriotism of the people sustains the Government and its credit the greenback will always keep abreast of the best money in the world.

Why, then, should a currency like this be retired and give way to other kinds of notes, the volume of which could be controlled by corporations whose interests would be best subserved by a limited rather than a liberal volume of currency? These are days of combination. With the volume of paper currency in the control of the banks, and nothing to prevent them from contracting and expanding it as their interests might suggest why might we not look for a consolidation of the leading banks just as we have had consolidations of leading railroad lines, of leading steel plants and other industries, thus putting the money of the country practically in the control of a few men who formed this banking combine which would have the smaller banks in its power, just as the railroad combines have the smaller railroads, and the steel combines have the smaller steel plants in their power?

It might be urged that the great banks would not abuse the power they would have because in the long run it would not be to their interest to do it even if they had the disposition; but that is neither here nor there; it is putting the power into their hands which is to be guarded against, for with power there is temptation and there is no telling when it may be abused. We know that the industrial combines which have been organized have taken advantage of the power they have to run up prices and make enormous profits out of the American people, and bankers are just as human and just as susceptible to temptation as the gentlemen who organize and run these industrial combines.

Men who have the making of the laws and are supposed to guard the interests of the people should not take anything for granted nor trust to the unselfishness or patriotism of men in matters of money, for when the average conscience wrestles with dollars, there is great danger of the dollar coming out on top, especially when helped by legislation which puts it in a respectable and lawful attitude.

No political party in this country has ever dared to put the word "retire" in its platform; it has never been an issue in our political campaigns; no popular assemblage that we have ever heard of has demanded that the greenbacks be retired, and the only demand ever made has been by parties whose interests might be subserved by retiring them. Under these circumstances we think the gentlemen in Congress will think twice before they leap, and do a great deal of it before they are prevailed upon to tackle the greenback.

HARD TO WIPE OUT.

The more Great Britain sees of the war with the Boers the more perplexed she becomes and the more she realizes that the end is not yet in sight, notwithstanding all the reports to the contrary. She has now in the field 200,000 troops with 450 big guns, and yet she is about to send 29,000 more men to help those 200,000 to fight the plucky remnants of the Boer armies.

The British war managers do not seem to have ever known the number of fighters the Boers had in the field and do not now know the number they have and that is one of the puzzles that perplexes them. As bearing upon this the following which we clip from the Baltimore Sun, condensed from an article in the Edinburg Scotsman, will be interesting:

"The Edinburgh Scotsman publishes a table of the Boer casualties, or losses, since July 1 last, as reported by General Kitchener, not including those of the sanginary fights at Itala and Prospect. The total of killed, wounded, prisoners and voluntary surrenders, as given, 6,346, or, if Itala and Prospect be included, 6,846. The aggregate of killed in the three months was 785; wounded, 671; prisoners, 3,945; voluntary surrenders, 1,445. Previous to July 1, in the first six months of the present year, there were reported killed 525; wounded, 290; prisoners, 3,538; voluntary surrenders, 1,319. The total for the nine months ended September 30 is 12,518. Deducting wounded, who presumably remained uncaptured, the total diminution of the Boer fighting force in that period was 11,857. As some eight or ten thousand are supposed to be still in arms, the fighting force must have exceeded somewhat the ordinary estimates. Commonly the military age is supposed to embrace only the years between 18 and 45, but among the Boers there is no recognized limit, boys of 15 and old men of 75 being found among the prisoners taken. To be added also are the foreign recruits and the Dutch recruits from Cape Colony and Natal, estimated to exceed 14,000. If to this figure be added the number commonly said to have been of "military age" in 1899, the number of fighters below and above the military age and the number reaching the fighting age since 1899 a grand total of 85,000 is obtained for the aggregate Boer fighting force first and last.

"What has become of this aggregate if the present number of Boers in the field be estimated at not over 10,000? As already shown, General Kitchener claims a diminution of 11,857 in the last nine months of the war. The number of prisoners taken in the previous 15 months was about 30,000. There were besides some 3,000 voluntary surrenders, some 1,500 killed, some 3,000 who died of camp diseases, besides the 1,000 taken by the Portuguese to Lisbon. The number permanently disabled by wounds and accidents can hardly have been less than 500. These items account for but 59,857 Boer fighters out of the estimated aggregate of 85,000. There is accordingly still a margin of 25,143 men and boys upon which the Boer leaders may draw, if the above estimates are approximately correct, to say nothing of future recruits from Cape Colony and Europe. It is possible that the total available Boer strength has been exaggerated and that their losses from battle, accident and disease have been underestimated, but in any case it seems probable that the patriot army is considerably larger than the British suppose. The recent attacks on British detachments were made at points hundreds of miles apart and by bodies said to be 1,500 to 2,000 strong—a fact inconsistent with the idea that only a few small bands now hold the field."

The war has entered upon its third year. In that time England has sent into South Africa about 325,000 men, more than four times the estimated number of fighting strength of the Boers at the beginning of the war, counting the young boys and old men. And yet with all her resources, and all the losses by the Boers, as given in the figures above, they are holding out with amazing pertinacity, and worrying England as she was never worried before. No wonder she is perplexed and beginning to realize the "humanity staggering" cost of that attempted grab of Boer territory. And the end is not yet. She is not done paying in either men or money.

SOLD HIS ANGORAS.

In reply to the inquiry in an editorial in the STAR sometime ago, in reference to the Angora goat ranch in Cumberland county, the Fayetteville Observer says:

"The wealthy Northerner, Mr. Main, who started the goat farm in this section, recently sold the entire herd of Angoras to a Virginia man at a profit, and is now experimenting in sheep raising. He says that, though he felt assured that he would have made a success with his Angoras in the end, they were too much trouble, and he had so much bad luck with them that, when he received such a good offer for them, he decided to sell and try the sheep."

What the "trouble" was is not stated, but the impression created by publications on the Angora goat is that it comes so near of taking care of itself that there should not be much trouble in raising them. But new ventures of that kind are generally attended by more or less trouble and more or less "bad luck."

Mr. Main's experience should not deter other farmers from trying their luck, at least with a few in the start, for if they are as good stock as represented to be they will pay the man who makes a success of raising them. The industry is a success in other Southern States, in some of the Southwestern and Western States and there is no reason why it should not be in North Carolina. Notwithstanding Mr. Main's experience he thinks he could have made a success of it.

Some fellow up North proposes to swap Carrie Nation for Miss Stone, but Carrie objects, and so, too, would the kidnappers, if they have heard of Carrie's hatchet performances.

The beer that made Milwaukee famous

You drink some beers that cause bilious headache. Perhaps you think that all beers do.

The cause of biliousness is the lack of age—too much haste to put the beer on the market. To ferment beer thoroughly requires a process of months. Without it the fermentation takes place in your stomach. That is the cause of biliousness.

Hurried beer is unhealthful. Schlitz beer is kept for months in refrigerating rooms with a capacity of 265,000 barrels—kept almost at freezing point until it is well fermented. Schlitz beer is never marketed until thoroughly aged.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—The cheers for Roosevelt which followed his appointment of ex-Governor Jones, of Alabama to a federal judgeship have been suddenly stilled in the South by the news from Washington that the President had entertained at dinner in the White House Booker T. Washington.—New Orleans States, Dem.

—We must solve the negro question for ourselves. To begin with, it was folly to expect assistance in this matter from Washington, so long as the Republicans are in power. To fly into fits, now that this baseless expectation has failed, is to add weakness to weakness. Serve notice on Mr. Roosevelt that his influence with the white men of the South is forever gone. Then let him alone. That is the course for the South to pursue in the premises.—Portsmouth (Va.) Star, Dem.

—From that view, even though it be expressed by the Chief Magistrate of the nation, Americans of the Southern States promptly and emphatically dissent. The negro is not the social equal of the white man. Social equality between the white race and the black race has never existed and never will exist. The truth of that statement is written in letters of living light in the records of the human race. It is the decision of the ages; and Mr. Roosevelt might as well attempt to rub the stars out of the firmament as to erase that conviction from the heart and brain of the American people.—New Orleans Times-Democrat, Dem.

—Without doubt at the present moment the President has greatly weakened his political position in the whole country, and has most seriously fallen from popular favor in the Southern States, for it is impossible to forecast his intentions and policy from his past acts. Nobody knows what he will do next. The great commercial interests of the country fear radicalism of any sort in the administration of the Republic. They want quiet, conservatism and peace. As matters now stand, the political and social atmosphere is seriously disturbed. "What next?" is on every tongue.—New Orleans Picayune, Dem.

A LITTLE KNOWN ART.

The Tobacco Flavorer Has Short Hours and Draws Big Pay.

"A high grade position of which but little is known, except to the trade," observed a prominent tobacco manufacturer to a Washington Star reporter, "is what is known as the 'flavorer,' the man who is responsible for the flavor of all the grades of goods made and who sees to it that the flavor is kept the same year in and year out, it matters not where the tobacco that goes in them comes from or the conditions under which it has grown. Of course tobacco manufacturers endeavor to use the same kind of tobacco all the time, but circumstances at times render this impossible.

"As an illustration, our company had bought up and stored away enough tobacco to make up all our brands of smoking tobacco and cigarettes for the year, when all of a sudden our storehouses were destroyed by fire, and our stock went out of existence. There was no more tobacco of that particular grade to be bought, and we were driven into new fields. The tobacco being raised on a different soil and being slightly different as far as seed and stem were concerned, the flavor was also different. Smokers, and chewers as well, insist on the same flavor all the time.

"Here is where the flavorer comes in. By his art and skill he can make tobacco that grows on low lands taste and smell the same as that grown on high lands. He can make tobacco grown during a dry season take the same flavor as that grown during the rainy season. Tobaccos grown at different ends of the same state or in different states are by his treatment the same, as far as the consumer is concerned. He draws big money; but, though he comes high, as the traveling show companies say, 'we must have them.'

"As may be imagined, there are not many who are competent to do the work, and as a result they range in salaries all the way from $8 to $10 per day of about one hour's actual work. They are employed, however, but about nine months in each year."

MAGIC AMULETS.

Thought to Bring Good Luck to Their Chinese Owners.

It is the desire of every Chinaman's heart to possess a pair of magic bracelets. Arm rings or bracelets are thought a great deal of in the Celestial empire, the custom of wearing them having been handed down from time immemorial. Usually made of jade stone, the Chinese arm ring of today is of one invariable shape. It looks like a large martingale.

The Chinese word for jade is ngookseu and for jade arm ring or bracelet ngook-ak. The custom in China is to place the bracelet on a young man's arm just before the hand stops growing. A tight fit is usually secured, and once placed the amulet arm ring is worn throughout life. At death, if the bracelet has proved a lucky one and if there is a son whom it will fit, the bones in the old man's hand are broken and the bracelet removed.

Many are the marvelous tales told by the Chinese of the wonderful qualities these amulets possess. There is a tradition that a certain Chinese emperor who was stricken with paralysis wore upon his forearm a magic bracelet, which kept life in that member for many months and allowed him to make known his desires and decrees by writing. At last, when death claimed the emperor, something even more wonderful took place. Dead three days and lying in state, his body was being viewed by the priests. The advisability of removing the bracelet was being considered, when the hand was lifted up and gave a signal which they interpreted to mean the bracelet should go with its owner to the tomb.

Among other wonderful properties a good amulet is said to act as a fairly reliable barometer.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

VERY EXPLOSIVE WOOD.

Difficulty in Disposing of Casks That Have Held Nitroglycerin.

"One of the most puzzling of the many difficult problems that confront our trade is how to get rid of the empty casks that have contained nitroglycerin," said a manufacturer of explosives. "The wood of the casks becomes so saturated with nitroglycerin that in explosiveness it equals the nitroglycerin itself.

"It does not pay nor is it safe to refill the casks. To burn them is out of the question. If left around, they are a constant menace, for while all men are prone to show their respect for a dangerous explosive there are few that think that harm can come of a kick at an empty barrel. There is nothing to do but to explode the casks.

"This is generally done by placing them on open ground and firing a rifle bullet at them from a safe distance. The concussion produced by the bullet is more than enough to bring about an explosion, and there is one good thing about those casks when they go off—there are no fragments to pick up.

"When I said that the shock of the bullet was more than sufficient, I meant every word of it. To prove this I'll just tell you what happened at our factory not so very long ago. Two empty nitroglycerin casks were to be blown up. Three men with a team of horses, a wagon and a rifle set about the business. They reached the spot selected for the explosion in safety and lifted the casks to the ground.

"One of the casks was carried to a proper distance. The other was left standing near the wagon. The man who was to do the shooting then conceived the idea of leaning his rifle against the top of this second cask to get a better aim. He thought this was safe because he knew that the recoil of the rifle was almost unnoticeable.

"Well, when he fired there were two simultaneous explosions. His bullet hit its mark and did its work. At the same time the other cask was exploded by the slight jar produced by the firing of the shot. The three men, the two horses and the wagon were literally swept off the earth, and when a few moments later you passed the spot where they had stood it was hard to believe that they had ever existed. The largest fragment recovered after them was a harness buckle."—New York Sun.

"I had been a sufferer for many years from nervousness with all its symptoms and complications," writes Mrs. O. N. Fisher, of 1361 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. "I was constantly going to see a physician or purchasing medicine. My husband at last induced me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. PRETTY ROUGH SPORT.

A Cruel Game Played In the Camps of Canadian Lumbermen.

So full of peril is the lumberman's life that even his sports and games must be spiced with danger or they will pall upon his taste. On the long winter nights a cruel game called "Jack, where be ye?" is frequently played.

The middle of the largest room in the camp is cleared. Two men are securely blindfolded and, having previously drawn lots for the first whack, they kneel on the floor. In his right hand each man holds a stout leather strap, in his left another leather strap, or a rope is held by the end, either close to the floor or, in some camps, actually on it. The latter strap, being kept taut by the combatants, guarantees a uniform distance between them. They are quite near enough to hurt each other severely, which not infrequently happens.

Now, the man who has been lucky enough to draw the first call shouts, "Jack, where be ye?" to which his opponent must immediately answer, "Here I be." Then the first man strikes at the place where he imagines his adversary to be with the heavy leather strap. If he hits his man, he is entitled to another blow—may call out again, "Jack, where be ye?" and the other must answer, "Here I be." This is continued till the first man misses, when he must take his turn at being struck.

The others form a ring around the two combatants, bets are made, and each faction encourages and applauds its chosen man. There are regular rounds, and the game is usually kept up until one or the other has had enough or perhaps till one is carried off the scene wounded. Hard heads can stand hard knocks, and volunteers for the sport are numerous. At the beginning there is generally no malice. A hard blow is struck—it is expected—it is the game. But it occasionally happens that the game develops into a fierce duel.—Pearson's.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The market for cotton futures opened firm with prices three to five points higher and for a time displayed a disposition to do still better on covering, foreign buying and some demand from Wall street commission houses. The better feeling was entirely due to firmer English cables than expected, Liverpool having advanced one and one-half to three points instead of an expected drop of one and one-half points But tremendous port and interior receipts with fine conditions of weather all over the belt, soon caused the bear faction to assume aggressive tactics. General selling slowly but surely forced prices downward, January reaching 7.81, around which shorts turned for profits. Towards midday there were evidences that the trade had sold out and was considerably short. At this time bull news began to sift in and buying orders from the South and the West were received. The weekly government report stated that while the weather had been perfect for picking, the late crop had been damaged to some extent by frost, the yield was showing up light and there was little prospect of a top crop in any section. Close upon this news came smaller estimates than expected for to-morrow's New Orleans and Houston receipts. Reports received from Fall River and dry goods district were favorable. Prices were very sensitive during the early afternoon, and on a spurt of active general buying, January reached 7.91. Later there was a reaction under large selling and a lull in outside support, but toward the close the market again broke and exhibited a surprisingly steady undertone and finished steady at a net rise of seven to ten points. On the upturn, Southern and European shorts were nervous buyers in our market while export houses, which had put out large lines of hedges last week, sought to cover them. All told, about 200,000 bales changed hands during the day.

VAST CORK FORESTS.

THOSE OF SPAIN AND PORTUGAL ARE IMMENSE IN AREA.

How the Pliable Bark Is Stripped From the Trees, Boiled, Scraped and Cut Into Shape—Thousands Employed In the Industry.

The cork forests of Spain cover an area of 620,000 square miles, producing the finest cork in the world. These forests exist in groups and cover wide belts of territory, those in the region of Catalonia and part of Barcelona being considered the first in importance. Although the cork forests of Estremadura and Andalusia yield cork of a much quicker growth and possessing some excellent qualities its consistency is less rigid, and on this account it does not enjoy the high reputation which the cork of Catalonia does.

In Spain and Portugal, where the cork tree, or Quercas suber, is indigenous, it attains to a height varying from 35 to 60 feet and the trunk to a diameter of 30 to 36 inches. This species of the evergreen oak is often heavily caparisoned with wide spreading branches, clothed with ovate oblong evergreen leaves, downy underneath and the leaves slightly serrated. Annually, between April and May, it produces a flower of a yellowish color, succeeded by the acorns. Over 30,000 square miles in Portugal are devoted to the cultivation of cork trees, though the tree virtually abounds in every part of the country.

The methods in vogue in barking and harvesting the cork in Spain and Portugal are virtually the same. The barking operation is effected when the tree has acquired sufficient strength to withstand the rough handling it receives during this operation, which takes place when it has attained the fifteenth year of its growth. After the first stripping the tree is left in this juvenescent state to regenerate, subsequent strippings being effected at intervals of not less than three years, and under this process the tree will continue to thrive and bear for upward of 150 years.

The bark is stripped from the tree in pieces two or three inches in thickness, of considerable length and of such width as to retain the curved form of the trunk whence it has been stripped. The bark peeler or cutter makes a slit in the bark with a knife perpendicularly from the top of the trunk to the bottom; he makes another incision parallel to and at some distance from the former and two short horizontal cuts at the top and bottom. For stripping off the piece thus isolated he uses a kind of knife with two handles and a curved blade. Sometimes, after two cuts have been made, he leaves the tree to throw off the bark by spontaneous action of the vegetation within the trunk.

The first process through which the bark passes after stripping is that of boiling. This is sometimes done in the woods, but more frequently in the cork factory, in large specially constructed caldrons in which the bark is left to boil for upward of an hour, causing an increase of thickness (generally of one-fourth to one-fifth), elasticity of the cork and dissolution of the tannin and other substances. The boiling of the cork can also be effected by steam, for which purpose it is introduced into a wooden box lined with copper or zinc, which is filled with water and steam injected therein. The loss of weight effected by boiling the cork varies between 12 and 40 per cent.

In making corks it is necessary to take away the hard crust or raspa, for which a tool is used with a short handle and curved blade. Scraping machines are also used, two systems being employed—the Besson and Tousseau. The former, propelled by steam, consists principally of horizontal spindles supplied with comb-like teeth and turning at the rate of 900 revolutions a minute. The Tousseau scraper attacks the cork by means of a vertical iron shaft carrying several knives, whose edges are also vertical, and by a rotary movement of the shaft, giving 1,400 turns a minute, work like a brush.

Before cutting the slabs into strips they are cooked for about half an hour so as to facilitate the cutting and piled up soon afterward in a damp place, so as to preserve the softness until ready to operate upon. The slabs are divided into three strips, the width of which is equal to the length of the corks, and in such a way that if the corks be placed in the position occupied by the slab on the tree they would have their fibers running alike. The workmen cut the strips by means of a knife with a flat surface and curved edge, called cuchilla de rabanar. The strips are then made into squares by means of the cuchilla. They then have the edges cut and are ready to be made into corks.

The squares pass into the hands of a workman who is furnished with a knife composed of two pieces—one of them similar to an ordinary knife and the other a blade the edge of which fits into the first. He holds the knife by a small iron catch to the table in front of him and, giving the square a circular movement, the result is that a cork is made in a few seconds. The squares are usually boiled for about a quarter of an hour. They are then deposited in a cool place, and four or five days afterward they are sorted and kept damp until required.

Machines are also employed to make corks, and all consist, at the base, of a knife, the blade of which is placed horizontally, joined generally to a piece of wood, to which a backward and forward movement is given similar to that of a carpenter's plane. In moving, the knife turns the square cork, which, being attacked by the knife, takes off a strip of cork more or less thick, according to the distance from the axle of the cork to the edge of the knife. If these are parallel, the result is that the cork is cylindrical, and, if not, it becomes conical. The cork-maker or workman has several large baskets, into which he places the corks according to size or quality, but this first classification is not sufficient, and the corks are placed upon a table and more carefully sorted. To classify the corks according to size wooden boxes are employed, the bottoms of which can be taken out or put in, having a kind of grating of wood.

The corks are worked in a solution of oxalic acid or bioxalate of potash. As soon as washed they are placed out to dry gradually in the shade, in order to enable them to retain the silky gloss which the cork has when it is damp. For packing, 30,000 corks constitute what is called a bale, but for transportation across the ocean bales of from 5,000 to 10,000 corks are made.—Boston Herald.

Hospital Patients Spanked.

A very useful adjunct to the paraphernalia at the Hahnemann hospital, Philadelphia, is known as "the awakener." This is a wooden paddle about two feet long, designed to restore consciousness to patients who have either taken poison or who have lapsed into a comatose condition from the effect of too much liquor.

This little instrument is decorated with such legends as "The way of the transgressor is hard," "Slumber, sweet slumber, nit!" and similar sentences purporting to be in a jocular vein. "The awakener" is used upon the soles of a patient's feet. The shoes and stockings are removed, and then the paddle is applied with full force. Most of the patients respond to this treatment within ten minutes, but sometimes where drugs have been used "the awakener" is kept busy for an hour or even longer.—Philadelphia Record.

Early Universities In Scotland.

In the early university period there were no salaried teachers, no lecture halls, no separate buildings whatever. In the first years of the University of Glasgow, for instance, theology and law were taught in the crypt of the cathedral, where church and academy were evidently one and the same. The need of special buildings for instruction and residence was soon felt. The idea of distinct colleges as component parts of one university as a whole originated in Bologna and Paris, where the overcrowding and rise in prices of lodgings had led benevolent patrons to found college, where the students could be protected also by proper supervision from the corrupting influences of these communities.—Scribner's.

A HOME CURE.

Thousands of women who are living quietly, amid the luxuries of home have hidden suffering. They start at every little jar or noise. They become irritated at the slightest cause. They suffer periodical pains but have little understanding of what causes them. If they went to a doctor for an examination they would be shocked to hear they had "female troubles"—a prospect which strikes terror to a woman's heart. Female troubles come on gradually, but plain warnings tell of their approach.

Are you nervous?
Do little things annoy you?
Do you start at every sound?
Are you discouraged and miserable on certain days, then elated again the next?
Are your menses painful or irregular?

WINE OF CARDUI

If your answer is "yes" to any of these questions you should not be deceived. You are suffering with female troubles and should begin the Wine of Cardui treatment at once. It will cure you as it has cured 1,000,000 other women. It cures in the privacy of the home. No private examinations. No operations. Could relief be easier? Try Wine of Cardui.

Bozzelder, Texas, December 3, 1900.

I received a copy of the Home Treatment of Female Diseases and my wife and I read it all through. My wife was very unhealthy. She has been using Wine of Cardui thirteen months. It gave her good health and we are all more than thankful for your book and advice. It did her more good than any other medicine in the world. May you prosper! I shall ever use your medicine in my family. F. P. REID.

The Cause of It.

Unless a cyclist is a "scorcher" there is no need, generally speaking, to make any effort to avoid him. He will look out for the collisions.

A lady was crossing the street when she saw a bicycle rider coming toward her. She stopped, then dodged backward and, as he had swerved in order to pass behind her, there was a collision and both took a fall, but neither was much damaged.

"If you hadn't wabbled, sir," she said angrily as he assisted her to rise, "this wouldn't have happened!"

"Neither would it have happened, madam," he replied, "if you hadn't wabbled, or if you had wabbled in a contrary direction from my wabble. It was our concurrent and synchronous wabbling, so to speak, that caused it."

Then the cyclist, a college professor, doffed his cap, mounted his wheel and rode on.

Can't Beat 'Em.

As usual he was monopolizing the newspaper.

"Please let me have the woman's page," she said.

He carefully tore off a page and handed it to her.

It was a full page advertisement of a millinery opening, and he chuckled at his own little joke.

Still, she was revenged. She went to the opening, and he paid the bill.—Chicago Post.

Convincing His Chum.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from Pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of Consumption. THE LATEST AS TO NERVES AND STRENGTH

It is not muscle so much as the nerves back of muscle which show one's strength and power of endurance. And the sturdy with able physicians of to-day is how to keep the nerves in perfect health and fitted for the strain of everyday living. Headache of every type, nerve weakness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, languor, restlessness, nervous dyspepsia, muscular weakness, brain weariness, poor circulation,—a thousand different unpleasant feelings and symptoms are due to nerve waste and nerve weakness,—especially in women and children. But how can all this be prevented, one will ask? How can my broken-down constitution be repaired, and nerve strength and full, robust health be secured. Just two points to remember: Determine that you will grow strong in nerves and health, and decide to use at once that most famous nerve cure, COCELIN. It is delicious in taste, quick in action and makes the wearied nerves tingle with renewed strength and every function the stronger and faculty the brighter by its use. Druggists sell it.

FALL RIVER MILLS

Another Increase of Five Per Cent. in Wages by M. C. D. Borden.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

FALL RIVER, MASS., Oct. 22.—Notices have been posted in the Iron Works cotton mills increasing wages five per cent. to take effect November 4th. This is the second raise of five per cent. in these mills, which are owned by M. C. D. Borden, New York, within a month.

This unexpected action, it is feared, may precipitate another of the frequent crisis in the cotton manufacturing industry of Fall River, as the operatives of other mills have not yet recovered from the agitation caused by the announcement of the previous advance at the Iron Works mills.

The Textile Council to-night instructed its secretary to send a communication to the manufacturers asking for a ten per cent. increase in wages, to take effect November 4th. The action of Mr. Borden in advancing wages another five per cent. in his mills here has stirred the operatives to an unusual pitch and they talk very strongly of fighting for the advance. The manufacturers on the other hand firmly declare that an increase will not be given.

MONEY RECOVERED.

Part of the Stealings of the Bank Messenger George Armitage.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Harry O'Connell, of 104 W. 39th street, surrendered himself to the police to-day and gave up $3,000 which he said was part of the money stolen by Bank Messenger George Armitage on October 15th from the Bank of New Amsterdam. O'Connell was a companion of young Armitage. O'Conell says he and the bank messenger went on a spree and spent five hundred dollars of the money. The remaining $,3000 he had kept. O'Connell was held for examination before a magistrate.

Marie Forest, Leonora Kahn and Seymour Kahn voluntarily came to police headquarters to-night, when the Forest girl gave up $485 which she said was part of $500 which Armitage had given her with which to furnish a flat. The three were held by the police. They insist that they did not rob Armitage, but that he gave up the money willingly.

PRESIDENT'S ACTION UPHELD.

By the American Missionary Association of the Congregational Church.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt's action in entertaining Booker T. Washington, the noted colored educator, at the White House was upheld and publicly approved by the American Missionary Association which opened its fifty-fifth annual meeting to-day at the first Congregational church at Oak Park. The matter had been a common topic of conversation among the delegates throughout the day; the society's prominence in the education of the negro making the matter of unusual interest.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

Denies That He Has Been Interviewed On the White House Incident.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Oct. 22.—Booker T. Washington, who is here attending the Yale bicentennial celebration, gave the following statement to the Associated Press to-night:

"I understand that some papers in certain parts of the country are printing alleged interviews with me. I want to state as emphatically as I can that I have given no interview and have refrained from any discussion of what occurred at Washington, although persistent efforts have been made to put words into my mouth."

SCHLEY NAVAL COURT OF INQUIRY

Several Officers of the Flagship Brooklyn On the Witness Stand.

GEO. E. GRAHAM'S TESTIMONY

Was an Associated Press Correspondent and With Schley During Campaign. Told of Conversation Between Schley and Sigsbee.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Schley court of inquiry opened to-day with Lieut. Wells, who was Commodore Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war, still on the stand, but he was soon displaced to allow Yeoman Albert V. Mason, who had written the Brooklyn's log for the period covering the Santiago campaign, to testify. Mr. Mason explained the erasures in the log entry referring to the Brooklyn's turn on the day of the battle off Santiago. He was followed by George E. Graham, who, as an Associated Press correspondent was with Commodore Schley during the campaign.

Mr. Graham's testimony covered all the principal events of the campaign and discussed especially the bombardment of the Spanish ship Colon on May 31st, and the battle of Santiago on July 3rd. Mr. Graham testified to hearing a conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Sigsbee when the latter came aboard the flagship Brooklyn off Santiago May 26th. He said that he had distinctly heard Captain Sigsbee tell the commodore the Spanish fleet was not inside the harbor at Santiago. Mr. Graham also stated that Admiral Schley had told him that the object of the bombardment of May 31st was to develop the Spanish batteries on shore, and he said that the range was fixed at 7,000 or 7,500 yards in order to draw their fire.

The witnesses for the afternoon were Dennis J. Cronin, who was Admiral Schley's orderly, and who testified along the same line with Mr. Graham to the conversation with Captain Sigsbee; Lieutenant Commander Wm. R. Rush, who said he thought the Viscaya had planned to ram the Brooklyn; Lieut. Edward Simpson, who gave a very graphic picture of the battle of July 3d, and Lieut. Edward T. Fitzgerald, an assistant engineer, who was on duty in the fire room on July 3d, and who testified that an order had been given early in the action to stand by for a ram.

Lieut. Wells was questioned concerning the department orders concerning the risking of the American ships to bombardment from shore batteries.

The first of the orders of this character stated that "the department does not wish the vessels of your squadron to be exposed to the fire of the batteries at Havana, Santiago or other strongly fortified ports in Cuba," and the others were regarded as modifications of these. In the last of these, dated May 6th, the department said "the department is perfectly willing that you should expose your ships to the heaviest guns of land batteries if, in your opinion, there are Spanish vessels of sufficient military importance protected by these guns to make an attack advisable, your chief aim for the present being the destruction of the enemy's principal vessels."

In reply to questions by Captain Lemly the witness said there had been no written or printed orders of battle, but that on the day before Cienfuegos was reached some special directions were sent to the ships by the Scorpion. This was, he said, order No. 9, relating to signals in case the enemy should be sighted.

Albert V. Mason was questioned by Captain Parker and said that he had been a yeoman of second class on board the Brooklyn and had been the writer of that ship's log. The witness said that as the log giving an account of the Brooklyn's turn had been at first prepared it read:

"We engaged with port battery at first, but just as soon as the enemy stood to westward we put our helm starboard at first, then hard aport, so as to bring our starboard battery to bear and swinging clear of the Texas' fire we stood parallel with and to the enemy."

This entry had, he said, been changed later at the instance of Lieutenant Hodgson so as to make it read as it does in the permanent copy, as follows:

"As soon as the enemy stood to the westward we put our helm aport, swinging clear of the Texas, etc."

George E. Graham, the Associated Press correspondent, was then questioned concerning the conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Sigsbee on the occasion of the captain's visit to the Brooklyn on May 26, and said:

"After Captain Sigsbee had reached the quarter deck of the gangway he stopped and Commodore Schley said to him, 'Have we got 'em Sigsbee?' Captain Sigsbee said, 'no, they are not here. I have been here for a week and they are not here.' We went aft and he continued the conversation. Commodore Schley said, 'are you sure they are not there?' He said, 'I have been very close to the harbor entrance two or three times. Captain Cotton has been in and cut a cable and they are not there.' Captain Sigsbee later took a dispatch written by me and vised by Commodore Schley. He took it aboard his ship and he was to deliver it to one of the small boats or else take it over himself."

"And Captain Sigsbee took that dispatch?"

"Yes, sir. It was open. It detailed the fact that the fleet was not there."

When witness asked permission to go aboard the Massachusetts Schley said that they did not intend to do anything except find out what the batteries consisted of.

"Now tell me regarding the conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Higginson."

"There was some discussion about what the Spanish fleet had brought with them. A report was current that they had brought arms and ammunition for the defence of Havana and there also was discussion as to whether they had had time to mount them or whether from any ships in the harbor prior to the arrival of the fleet they had taken any large guns and mounted them. The two officers smoked their cigars and chatted over it. Commodore Schley said his idea was to go in to about 7,000 or 7,500 yards and fire, simply to draw their fire. So far as I remember, Captain Higginson acquiesced in that. Later Mr. Potts came in."

"Were you in the presence of Commodore Schley during the whole of this reconnoisance on the Massachusetts?"

"Only part of the time. At times I was behind the conning tower and he was on the other side of it."

"Did you see Lieut. Potts on board the Massachusetts?"

"He came into the pilot house during the conversation and took part in it."

At this point Mr. Rayner read to the witness a portion of the testimony given by Mr. Potts wherein he had referred to the conversat on between Commodore Schley and Captain Higginson as to going in for the bombardment, and asked:

"Were you present at any conversation at all between Commodore Schley and Lieutenant Potts, or were you present at any time when Commodore Schley made any remarks during each time Potts was present?"

"No, sir. I followed them right out of the pilot house and down to the conning tower. I did not hear any conversation of that kind."

"Then you don't know anything about the conversation about which Potts has testified that the commodore said: 'Gentlemen, we are very conspicuous objects here, let's get out of it.'"

"I never heard such conversation."

The witness said he was with the commodore during the whole reconnoissance and did not hear either of the alleged conversations.

"The commodore," witness said, "stood all the time on the side of the fire so that he could see what was going on. He was absolutely cool and sent continuous messages to the men to cheer them up. When Ellis' head was shot off he wiped some of the blood from his own person, and as the men picked the body up to throw it overboard, while the rest of us stood horrified, he calmly said, 'don't throw that body overboard. Take it below and we'll give it a Christian burial.' When the Viscaya went ashore the commodore went into the conning tower and himself called down the tube to the men below, 'They are all gone but one; it all depends on you, boys.'"

"Did you see the Oregon," asked Mr. Rayner.

"Very distinctly. I saw her coming up about the time we were beginning to get scared. The Brooklyn was fighting alone three of the Spanish ships when suddenly I saw in the distance a white line which soon developed into the Oregon." That, he said, occurred about the time the Oquendo went ashore.

"Did you ever see Commodore Schley when he appeared to be laboring under any mental excitement."

"Oh, no! He was jovial and good natured at all times and I did not observe the least trace of excitement or anxiety except at one time. That was when it looked as if the Colon might get away. He expressed fear that that might occur and seemed much concerned. I remember that he discussed with Captain Cook the advisability of stopping to couple his engines before dark, fearing that if postponed until later the Spaniards might get away."

At this point, Mr. Rayner began an examination of the witness concerning a conversation reported to have taken place between Commodore Schley and Captain Evans of the Iowa, after the battle, but before the examination had gone far it was objected to by Captain Lemly. "Were you," asked Mr. Rayner, "present at any conversation between Captain Evans and Commodore Schley?"

"Yes, sir, in the commodore's cabin on the Brooklyn on July 5th," Mr. Graham responded. "When Evans came in the first thing he said was, 'Schley, did you see Jack Phillip run away with the Texas?' and Commodore Schley said, 'No, neither did you.'"

Admiral Dewey (addressing counsel)—"One moment. Poor Phillip is not present, you know."

Mr. Rayner—"That has gone in in Captain Evans' testimony."

Captain Lemly—"In cross-examination something in regard to it has gone in. I cannot see what bearing it has."

Mr. Rayner—"We do not want to prove anything about what Captain Phillip said. This is a conversation at which Commodore Schley was present."

Captain Lemly—"You propose to contradict what you drew out in cross-examination?"

Mr. Rayner—"Why, of course."

After some further argument the court retired for the consideration of the point raised. After being out for twenty minutes, the members returned and Admiral Dewey announced the decision in the following terms:

"The court decides that the questions intended to impugn the credibility of a witness; intended to prove any point regarding the movements of the Brooklyn during the battle of July 3rd; intended to prove any statements made by Commodore Schley or conversations held with Commodore Schley, which have a material bearing upon the matters designated by the precept, are admissible, provided such conversations or statements occurred in the presence of and within the hearing of the witness."

Mr. Rayner then reiterated his question, asking him to repeat the conversation, which Mr. Graham did as follows:

"Captain Evans came into the cabin. I sat at a round table there. Commodore Schley got up and shook hands with Capt. Evans, and the latter said, 'Schley did you see Phillip turn around and run out of the fight?'"

"The commodore said, 'No, neither did you. He did not run out of the fight.'"

"Captain Evans said, 'Oh, he did; I saw him.' Captain Evans said he was in the next ship and saw him. The commodore said, 'It was not the Texas at all. The Texas was in the fight all the time. The ship you saw turn around was the Brooklyn.'"

When the court began its afternoon session Mr. Rayner announced that he had no more questions to ask Mr. Graham, and Captain Lemly announced that he had no questions to ask. Mr. Graham said in reply to questions by the court that during the conversation between Sigsbee and Commodore Schley the squadron was heading toward Santiago, and that during the battle of Santiago he had heard no conversation between the Commodore and Lieut. Hodgson.

Lieut. Edward Simpson said he had seen Commodore Schley several times during the engagement of July 3rd, but he remembered him especially as he stood when the Viscaya went ashore. "He was," said the witness, "leaning against the turret in the most natural position, holding his gloves in his arms."

"What was his deportment and bearing?"

"It was that of a brave man, self-possessed, alert to his duties and encouraging to officers and men to do their duty."

Lieutenant Edward P. Fitzgerald, assistant engineer on the Brooklyn, said that he was in the fire-room during the battle and that there were several orders. One of these, given at the beginning of the engagement, was to "stand by for a ram or collision at quarters."

Court adjourned for the day.

THEATRE PANIC IN LOUISVILLE.

Scores of People Were Knocked Down and More Than Twenty Badly Hurt.

CRY OF FIRE WAS RAISED.

Women and Children Made a Rush for the Doors, Fell and Were Trampled Upon. Cause of Panic Was Blowing Out of Fuse on Polyscope.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Oct. 22.—Hundreds of people attempted to rush out of the Temple theatre this afternoon because the cry of fire was raised, when a little flame was seen about the polyscope machine. In the scramble, scores of people were knocked down and more than twenty were badly hurt.

It was about 3:30, just after the first act of "Tennessee's Pardner," and while the polyscope was being prepared for its exhibition that the little flash of flame came that caused the panic. Many women and children made a rush for the door. The panic seized the gallery and in a moment the occupants were plunging down the stairway in a heap or were taking the swifter method of climbing down into the auditorium proper. In their haste, many fell, landing on those beneath. Several were badly hurt in this way.

Meanwhile those who had regained their presence of mind endeavored to stop the mad rush. The ushers and theatre attaches acted with great coolness. The orchestra played and a member of the stock company danced. This was effective in quieting those nearest the stage. The great crush occurred where the stairs came down from the gallery. Here the two crowds met and were packed in a space not large enough for half of them and all were trying with a desperation born of fear to reach the street. The weaker were soon knocked down and trampled under foot. Those who realized the state of affairs were trying their best to check the rush, but the crowd went on pell mell through the doors and literally rolled down the long flight of stairs.

As soon as the rush was over the care of the injured began. A big room was converted into a temporary hospital. The greatest haste was made in removing the injured from the building in order to prevent a panic when the audience was dismissed. Every patrol wagon and ambulance in the city was soon engaged in conveying the more seriously injured to the hospitals or their homes. The members of the stock company showed the greatest presence of mind and the play was finished without a hitch.

Thirty policemen promptly prevented disorder after the panic.

Clarence Meffert, an attache of the theatre, closed the wide exit doors as the rush began. He called a number of men and by main force held the crowd back. But for this hundreds might have been injured. Just as the doors were closed Mrs. O. W. Blunt pitched her four-year-old son through the exit to a policeman. He caught it in his arms, but it slipped to the floor, sustaining, however, no injuries except slight bruises.

There was no damage from fire. It is said the cause of the flames was the blowing out of a fuse on the polyscope.

INSURRECTION IN SAMAR.

Advices From Admiral Rogers — Naval Force Concentrated on Samar Patrol.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Navy Department has received the following cablegram from Rear Admiral Rogers:

CAVITE, October 22.—To Secretary Navy, Washington—Active insurrection in Samar. New York leaves today for Cathalogan with 300 marines, to return to Basey and Balangiga, to co-operate with the army. Nearly all the naval force is concentrated on the Samar patrol. Services of Arethusa and Zafiro, two colliers needed, are being utilized.

(Signed) ROGERS.

Naval officials construe the dispatch to mean that the New York will go first to Cathalogan and then to Basey and Balangiga, landing detachments of marines at each point.

Gen. Chaffee's Report.

MANILA, Oct. 22.—General Chaffee does not expect to hear of any extensive engagement in the Island of Samar. He believes the operations there will not result in an open fight. It is hard to find armed Filipinos, but every man without occupation will be compelled to go into a town.

The object of the reinforcement of American troops now being pushed forward is to increase all the garrisons to thirty-eight men. Some of them have until recently numbered only eight men. The reinforcements will also allow the detailing of a working force to operate in the field, hunting for insurgents.

Gen. Wheaton reports that a band of Bolomen has entered Tarlac province, Island of Luzon, through Bulangan province, and that the men composing it are distributing inflammatory bulletins which are also posted on the church doors, warning the people to prepare to take the field in January. Some of the friendly natives were informed by Bolomen that various bands of armed natives would shortly concentrate in the vicinity of Rosles

LEON F. CZOLGOSZ.

The Assassin of President McKinley Awaiting Electrocution—Asks for Spiritual Consolation.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, who is awaiting electrocution in the prison here during the week commencing next Monday, realizing that his death now is but a question of a few days, has asked for spiritual consolation and this afternoon received a visit from Rev. T. Szadinski, a Polish priest of the Roman Catholic Church.

Czolgosz's request for a priest of his own nationality was made known to Warden Mead in the morning. Father Szadinski, who is pastor of St. Stanislaus church, Rochester, was in this city, attending the forty hours devotions of St. Alphonsus church, and was asked to visit the prisoner. This afternoon he went to the prison and remained there about an hour.

The interview between priest and prisoner proved very unsatisfactory to both. It took place in the condemned man's cell and the conversation was carried on in Polish. During the interview Czolgosz said that he had been baptised in the Roman Catholic faith in the Polish church in Detroit. He had abandoned the church early in life and had lost all faith in its teachings. Father Szadinski urged him to renounce his belief in anarchy and return to the faith of his early years. Czolgosz declared his inability to do so, and he was informed that unless he could, the consolation of the church would be denied him. The priest urged the condemned man to consider the matter carefully, and told him that if at any time he decided to re-embrace the faith he would return from his home in Rochester and stay with him until the end.

Father Szadinski, before taking his departure left with Czolgosz some Catholic literature printed in Polish, and also some emblems of the church. Czolgosz assured Father Szadinski if he determined to accept the offices of religion he would send for him, but he did not hold out much hope that he would renounce doctrines of anarchy.
